INDIA PART- I

Indigenous People's Issues and Education

The Adivasis/Tribal knowledge, socio-cultural traditions, philosophy and economic practices are attached to Mother Earth. Their community and self-governance is generally democratic and upholds human values, community conscience, based on justice, peace and harmony. The present model of national and global development has affected them and they are facing immense violence. This webinar will explore how indigenous people in India are planning to use national laws and international UN declarations, treaties and conventions to sustain their survival and the survival of the planet.

Join efforts of indigenous communities of Mexico and India

We would like to jointly share with our Mexico brothers/sisters common practices to ensure the continuance of Mother Earth. The recent COVID-19 pandemic has given us common challenges. In bringing together the experiences at the root of our traditions and land, we hope we can better promote peace and harmony.

MEXICO – PART II

Peace and Nonviolence: From the Roots of the Original People

The voice of the original peoples, echo of the oral transmission of ancestral knowledge, resonates in the memory like our heartbeat in the mother's womb. We gather around this Peoples' Assembly sharing accomplishments and defeats, thoughts, proposals and petitions so that the Earth's cry is heard and the path of peace and nonviolence found again.
